New Industries

Maine To Seek Those Which Are Starting Moving, Expanding, Etc.

An advertising campaign designed to attract new industries to the State will be launched in August this week, Maine Development Commission officials announce.

The inception of the industrial drive will culminate the Commission's long-term program to advertise Maine recreation, agriculture and industry, it was said.

Recreational advertising was started in 1927 followed by similar promotion of the State's agricultural and seafood products in 1935.
Commission officials have termed both campaigns "highly successful."

The industrial campaign will invite industries that are "starting, moving, expanding or decentralizing," to locate in Maine.

Maine industrial assets to be exploited will include friendly labor, economical electrical energy, railroad facilities, fast trucking service, coastwise shipping facilities, foreign shipping facilities, low rentals and abundant pure water.

"Miss North Haven"

One of the outstanding features of the North Haven Grange fair was when Miss Elizabeth Bunker led Miss Hope Ames to the platform and she was crowned "Miss North Haven" by the master of the Grange Lawrence Grant. After the speech and amid hearty applause she was presented with a lovely bouquet of chrysanthemums, from the Grange;
and presents from Waterman Co.
Inc. and W. S. Hopkins. The hall was filled to capacity and the echoes from the clapping of hands will long be remembered by "Miss North

Rockland Lions

Fred C. Black, With Motion Pictures, Describes Three Canning Projects

The Rockland Lions heard from another captain of industry yesterday when Fred C. Black of Black & Gay Canneries, Inc., presented moving pictures of three of the corporation's principal canning projects—blueberries, sweet corn and beans. Gerald Black, son of the speaker manipulated the machine, while the speaker talked informally concerning the highly interesting pictures. He was asked numerous questions meantime and answered them with a promptness which showed his complete familiarity with the work which he has chosen for his life mission.

Canning, Mr. Black explained is one of the country's largest industries, coupled with tin cans, labels, boxes and the vast amount of machinery used. Maine is one of the pioneer States of the industry, having started the canning business away back in 1850. It has progressed with the times, the quality and flavor of the Maine products being a valuable factor in obtaining a market. More than 90 percent of the blueberries which go on that market are canned in Maine.

Apropos of his lecture Mr. Black read the following clipping:
"Sandwiched, with paper thinness, between the 6,000,000 farmers and 75,000 fishermen who furnish raw products, the 40,000 manufacturing establishments which process and deliver the products and the 45,000 wholesale and 300,000 retail American outlets for this processed food, a little label is pasted on to about 8,000,000,000 tin cans per year in this country."

"The canning industry is so young that the representatives of fewer than 50 American families can trace their ancestors' canning activities back three or more generations. Yet it is so old that no canner of this generation can recall when the first label was used on a can of processed food in this country."

The first film of motion pictures showed the method of burning blueberry lands—the rapid spread of the fires and the precautions which are taken to prevent the flames from getting out of control. This picture was taken at Beech Hill where Black & Gay have some of the finest blueberry land in the State. The theory of spreading and improved blueberries, through the burning method was explained. Pastures are burned over every other year, and sometimes once in three years. Blueberry lands are burned in March and April and dusted in July to prevent the inroads of maggots, a pest which the government is seeking to control by scientific methods. Seven pounds of dust are used to the acre, thrown for long distances by means of a gasoline motor. The work is done in the morning while there is yet dew on the plants.

Black & Gay employed 200 rakers during the last harvesting season.
A good raker gathers 200 pounds a day.

Another film showed the canning of corn at the Brooks factory where 85 operatives were employed this summer, sometimes working 20 hours a day. The acreage this year was 30 percent less than in 1937, but so well did the crop mature that the yield was equivalent to last year's. Three thousand cases a day were canned.

Equally interesting was the film relating to the canning of beans.
"Al" Smith acted as song leader yesterday and it was not "Sidewalks of New York."

C. Earle Ludwick chairman of the November entertainment committee, announced that Frank A.
Winslow will be the speaker next Wednesday and Lieut. Leon P.
Shepard would speak the following Wednesday.

AT A DOLLAR A GALLON

All-Time Low Price For Scallops—The Big Draggers Glut the Market

A scarcity of boats and low prices marked the official 1938-39 opening of Maine scallop beds yesterday with Commissioner Greenleaf and leading dealers forecasting a poor season. An unofficial check-up revealed that less than 30 boats chose to venture after the bi-valves for the all time low fall price of $1 a gallon. Ordinarily 60 to 100 boats would start fishing with the beginning of the season, according to Greenleaf who said that a fair price would be at least $1.75 a gallon. Last year the price opened at $1.50 which was considered low, he said.

Rodney E. Feyler of Rockland, Maine's leading dealer, told Greenleaf that he could not see much of a chance for an increase in price.
Stating that production by big draggers on offshore banks was exceeding the consumption. Feyler predicted that a small boat coastal fishery would not be profitable again until the market was enlarged on the offshore banks depleted.

Feyler, one of the pioneers of the industry said that he knew of only one boat sailing from Rockland where at least 25 would be in operation if it were possible for the fishermen to make a living. Formerly the Penobscot Bay beds were world famous and produced thousands of gallons annually.
Records show that cold storage holdings have reached a record high and Feyler said this would tend to keep the price down even though bad weather temporarily cut the production.

More and more draggers on Georges Bank and other beds are bringing in an unprecedented supply, he said. Winter fishing on offshore beds has been attempted only in recent years and is increasing annually, he said.

An influx of duty free Canadian and Japanese scallops is adding to the seriousness of the situation which Feyler believes will eventually completely kill the Maine coast fishery.

Development of new markets is seen as the best solution and Greenleaf said that his department in co-operation with the Maine Development Commission was starting a campaign for this purpose in the near future. Although scallops are sold in every state in the Union consumer demand especially in the inland areas is practically negligible, he stated. Pointing out that modern methods of packaging and cooling made it possible for Maine dealers to deliver fresh scallops over a wide area Greenleaf predicted that if new markets could be made, the coastal fishery would come back.

A fleet of 100 boats would employ several hundred men and provide them with a good livelihood,
he said.

Feyler and other dealers have approved the proposed campaign and have offered their full cooperation.—by Dick Reed of the Maine Development Commission.

EXIT THE FLYING SANTA

Maine Coast Beacons Not To Be Visited By Wincapaws This Year

New England has lost its "Santa Claus of the air." This Christmas the big aerial sled of Capt. William H. Wincapaw will not swing over the 91 lighthouses and coast guard stations along the rock bound coast as it has for eight years, dropping Yuletide bundles.

This Christmas the children in the isolated stations that guard the coast in the Boston area and the groupings, too, will look in vain for their aerial Santa Claus, for Capt.
Wincapaw has headed for the country that lies below the equator. He left yesterday to take part in the search for gold—a quest that has taken him to the far corners of the earth.

On his annual trek from light-house to lighthouse Capt. Wincapaw has covered close to 2,000 miles.
His annual Christmas Day flight brought thrills to the guardians of the coast from Minot's Light as far north as Grand Manan Island in Canadian territory.

The traditional flight originated in 1929 when Bill, as he is known throughout New England, was in charge of the Curtiss flying base at Rockland, Me. The Christmas flight idea sprang from his deep affection for the lonely lighthouse keepers and their families whom he came to know after making countless flights of mercy.

Too numerous to enumerate are the trips he made through almost impossible weather to bring injured men and women, and appendicitis sufferers, to the mainland for hospital treatment. On just as many occasions the 51-year-old aviator flew through blinding weather, carrying a physician to the person who was ill.

Any number of persons along the coast owe their lives to the veteran airman. One of them, Eleanor Staples of Swans Island, is alive today because Capt. Wincapaw had the ability and courage to fly through storm-swept skies. She reached the hospital when her condition was extremely critical. An emergency operation removed a ruptured appendix and she is alive today.

Since most of these flights were far off the beaten path of the radio beam, and many were made before the radio compass was developed, the veteran airman had the same inherent love for the lighthouses and their attendants as the seafaring man. In fair weather and foul they were his only navigation aids along the coast during his early days of flying.
On days when business was dull Bill would fly out to one of the lighthouses, tie up his seaplane and spend an hour or two chatting with the keeper and his family. Some of them told him that Christmas Day was the dullest of the year.
They said that there was no Yuletide spirit on the isolated lights; no toys for the children; no sweetmeats for any one. So on Christmas day in 1929 he loaded twelve bundles in his plane and set out to drop them at the stations near Rockland. The practice grew from year to year until Bill was flying 2,000 miles with Yuletide bundles.
Now it's all over. Bill today is winging his way across the Caribbean toward Bolivia in a Pan American Airways flying boat. He flew down to Miami the other day aboard an Eastern Air Lines plane.
He is headed for Siapiaro, a jungle village near the Mapiri and Kaka rivers, to handle the transfer of mining machinery from the coast to the camp. He expects to be gone five years, and during that time he plans to fly 4,000 tons of mining machinery a year to the placer operations set up by Ralph O'Neil.
Mr. O'Neil was president of the old Nyrbra air line that was gobbled up by the Pan American Airways in 1930. He has been down in Bolivia for several years developing the mining site, and within a short time expects to begin placer operations.
Capt. Wincapaw, when he gets to Siapiaro, will map out the best way of getting machinery to the village.
He has two alternatives, bringing it up the Amazon River by boat to the headwaters and flying it the rest of the way, across the Andes from LaPaz. The water route probably will prove the cheaper and the faster if it is found practical.
Meanwhile New England will be without its aerial Santa Claus. Bill's son, who helped last year by flying one of the lighthouse routes while his father flew another, is expecting to go to Bolivia to help cart the mining machinery by air. Another flier may take up the job of playing Santa, but it will not be Bill.
If no one takes over the job there undoubtedly will be some disappointed families on Christmas Day.
Isolated as they are and with their winter supplies already laid in, many of the lighthouse attendants will not know on Christmas Day that their Santa has left his native heath. Unless some one else takes up the job they will watch till their eyes tire out for the aerial sled to appear upon the horizon in the direction of the mainland. Above the pounding of the waves and the whine of the wind they will listen in vain for the familiar roar of the engines of Wincapaw's plane.
Even last year Bill vowed that he

EDITORIAL
THE MENACE MONTHS

Maine motorists are now on the threshold of the two most hazardous months of the year. The combination of fog, frost, ice and snow, constitutes a menace which has its only parallel in the Drunk Driver and the Careless Pedestrian. To overcome these obstacles, says Sergeant McCabe of the Highway Safety Division, drivers of motor vehicles must not only be extremely careful but must adjust their manner of driving to the existing conditions. Speed must of a necessity be curbed and the standard of automobile equipment required by the law must be maintained. It would be no exaggeration to say that Sergeant McCabe's monthly bulletins are doing much to show the careless and reckless driver the error of his ways. The bulletins are couched in language that everybody can understand, and none but the criminally minded can refrain from heeding the caution which they contain. Sergeant McCabe concludes his November bulletin with the following statement:

Now that the fears and horrors of war are past history in this country, Maine citizens should understand and realize that automobiles are still killing on our supposedly peaceful highways. More horrifying is the fact that our citizens are being killed, causing greater sorrow and suffering than war because these accidents are hitting directly at our civilian population, killing and maiming boys and girls, fathers and mothers. The dangers that confronted this Division a year ago and lurked on our highways are still there. Motor vehicle drivers of our State can help make our highways safer and end this needless slaughter if they would become danger conscious and pay particular attention to their own driving tactics and follow the rules and practices that make for safety at all times. If every man and woman, son and daughter is willing to co-operate and contribute their share to reducing these unending deaths and maimings of human beings on our streets and highways, they should make a pledge to themselves and humanity before driving an automobile—that they will drive in a safe and sane manner at all times.

THOSE WEATHER PREDICTIONS

The weatherwise, who see Summer linger in the lap of Fall, read therein signs of another open Winter, and the newspapers are replete with predictions to that effect. As a matter of fact we will get just what is coming to us, and forecasts as to what may happen in December, January and February, are, in our opinion, just so much bosh, and just about as harmless as those almanac predictions which foretell cold in January and high winds in March. You will recall that the eminent radio meteorologist, E. B. Rideout, predicted a dry summer this year, whereas there was so much moisture that the grass never had a chance to turn brown.

LESSON OF THE ELECTIONS

What a fine time the news and radio commentators will have next Wednesday figuring out the lessons taught by the State elections of the previous day. Some will read in the results a rebuke to the New Deal or a commendation of it, but the chances are good that the outcome will in most instances, be due to local issues. Take our neighbor, Massachusetts, as an example. There the campaign has been signaled by personalities such as no other State seems to offer, and the result will not be New Deal or Old Deal, but an expression of Bay State's voters as to whether they want the smelly kind of government that Jim Curley gives.

LINCOLN COUNTY IN LUCK

Good news for Lincoln County is found in the announcement that Mrs. Samuel A. Miles is to build a $50,000 hospital at Gamage's Point in memory of her late husband, whose benefactions have blessed so many persons in that section of the State. His Salvation Army camp, costing $50,000, was widely known, and its privileges have been enjoyed by many Rockland children sent there under the auspices of the local branch of the Salvation Army.

MEET JUSTICE EMERY

One of the strong men on the Superior Court bench is presiding over the November deliberations in Knox County, in the person of Justice George L. Emery of Biddeford. Stern and uncompromising, but with eyes ever looking to the side of justice. Never before in the history of this nation have we needed stern and strict justice as much as we do today. Crime is rampant throughout the nation, and the public demands officials who will help curb it.

Four Aerial Flights Legion To Have Membership Drive Sunday—One Plane Comes to Rockland

Sunday, Nov. 6, the Maine Department of the American Legion will hold its annual aerial member-ship drive for 1939 members. With Maine's quota of 7908 members set by the National organization, the greatest aerial drive ever conducted in Maine has been arranged.
For five successive years, Maine has been honored at the National Telegraphic Roll Call which is to be held at Indianapolis, Nov. 15, as a member of the "Big Ten Departments" and this year Department Commander Frank E. Lowe of Portland has arranged for four separate aerial flights.
Advance reports from various sections of Maine, Department and Post officials are optimistically predicting that Maine will again achieve that honor and distinction, as a member of the Big Ten, and Post Commander Austin Brewer states that Winslow-Holbrook Post has an excellent chance to win the coveted honor from National Commander Steve Chadwick, which is a special citation certificate awarded this year to every Legion Post that attains its 1939 quota by Armistice Day.

Flight No. 1

Through the courtesy of the Gannett Publishing Co. of Portland, its big ship, piloted by Gil Pond, will have as its passengers, Department Commander Frank E. Lowe, Department President of the Auxiliary, Mrs. Olive M. Tinkham of Lewiston and Department Aviation Chairman Irwin David of Lewiston. Plane leaves Portland at 7 a. m., Millnocket 8.25, Caribou 9.15, Presque Isle 9.35, Houlton 10.10, Bangor

Flight No. 2

Department Vice Commander Roger Eastman of Auburn representing Department Commander Lowe will leave Auburn at 10 a. m., Rumford 10.30, Farmington 10.55, Rangely 11.30, Greenville 12.25
p. m., Dover-Foxcroft 12.55, Skowhegan 1.35 arrive in Waterville at 2 p. m.

Flight No. 3

Caldwell Sweet, a member of the Bangor Post representing Department Commander Lowe will leave Bangor at 9.30 for Woodland in Washington County and return to Bangor to make connections with Flight No. 1 from Aroostook County.

Flight No. 4

The Legion Post Commanders of Sagadahoc, Lincoln, Knox and Waldo Counties will forward their 1939 membership cards to Rockland where a plane leaving Waterville about 2 p. m. will make a direct flight to Rockland and return.
The newly appointed Department Membership Chairman, Gerry Wade of Skowhegan has assigned Spencer A. Gay of Damariscotta, as district membership chairman and he will be at the Rockland Airport to receive all membership cards at this point of contact on the itinerary.

BRIGHT STAR
Bright star, would I were steadfast as

Or gazing on the new soft-fallen mask Of snow upon the mountains and the

To feel for ever its soft fall and swell, Awake for ever in a sweet unrest, Still, still to hear her tender-taken

"The Black Cat"

By The Roving Reporter

A Warren correspondent writes:
"I would like to call The Black Cat's attention to the fact that the curtain may be rung down on this season as far as Beach Inn is concerned but that Hillcrest Homestead in Warren is still open, and the management expects to remain open some time yet, probably all winter." Omission of Hillcrest Homestead was entirely unintentional. I have been hearing some very kind words about this establishment and at the earliest possible moment I am planning to be numbered among the patrons.

One of the cute young things who guards hats at a New York restaurant claims she can read character by studying the inner lining of a man's hat. A clean lining, she says, indicates either a bald-headed man or a sedate fellow with curly locks, devoid of hair dressing. When there is no tonic on a man's hair, she insists, he is a conservative type.
Smeared linings are sure signs of dandyism and a tendency toward cutting up. Perspiration-stained bands point conclusively to newspapermen.

I have been shown a program of "Gorton's Famous Minstrels," which played at Farwell Opera House which was then under the management of Robert H. Crockett, with William H. Bird as treasurer. Minstrel shows always had a strong drawing power in Rockland, where such famous stars as Primrose and Dockstader have exhibited in other days. The noonday parade with concert in front of The Thorndike Hotel was always a popular feature and many a Rockland business man has gone home to a late dinner in order not to miss the lively music.

The late Col. G. L. Black who managed the Theatre after the death of "Bob" Crockett, told me one day that the best box office attraction, in this city was a "Tom" show. By which he meant an Uncle Tom's Cabin show. Many of Rockland's best citizens have wept as Little Eva went to Heaven.

Louis A. Walker, superintendent of the Welfare Department, was abroad yesterday looking for someone who would give him boxing lessons if the price was not too high.
An indignant patron of the Department swat him across the brow the other day because of a difference of opinion as to how it should be operated. The rapidity with which the patron was waltzed into the street indicates that perhaps the genial president of the Rotary Club doesn't need many boxing lessons.

Riding through a Maine town the other day Don Fuller almost ran over a brood of pheasants and woodcock which were discussing the current events of the day in the middle of the highway. Now just think of slaughtering beautiful birds as tame as that.

Our Razorville correspondent reports that Mrs. Rose Boynton is exhibiting a vase which contains a sprig of ripe raspberries, a second crop pea vine about seven inches long and dahlia blossoms picked

It's surprising the number of football fans who know how the Maine-Bowdoin game is coming out Saturday. The coaches wish they were equally well informed.

Somebody asked through this column the other day about Rockland households which might have old fashioned fireplaces. The Isaac Achorn house on the Old County road has one; also two brick is equipped with old fashioned windows and door latches. It's the so ago.

Attack From Mars

A Radio Broadcast Which Struck Terror In the East

Many Knox County radio fans are still talking about that Sunday night broadcast from Station WABC, when it appeared to the casual listener in that this country had been attacked by a foreign foe.

The New York Herald Tribune had this to say about the startling and unusual occurrence:

Parts of two states at least were thrown into disturbance last night by the broadcast of a play by WABC between 8 and 9 o'clock, the dramatic effect leading to reports that a meteor had crashed near Trenton, N. J., killing many persons.

The play was an adaptation of H. G. Wells' story, "The War of the Worlds." It was put on by Orson Welles and had been localized in New Jersey. In Mr. Wells' story the space ship from Mars landed in Wales and the invaders began at once to lay waste the countryside.

In the Orson Welles version the space ship, thought by many to be a meteor, landed near Trenton, and its occupants at once brought weapons of fabulous power to bear on the State of New Jersey. The story was presented in highly dramatic style, with the station announcer giving the news and turning over the facilities of the station to the New Jersey National Guard. A "major of the National Guard" gave the details of the horror in clipped sentences.

It soon became apparent on both sides of the Hudson River that thousands of persons had stumbled upon the program a little late, without knowing what they were getting into. Some tuned in just in time to get the vivid impression of a great disaster, with the National Guard taking charge and an enemy within the borders of New Jersey.

For months these same persons had subsisted upon headlines and radio broadcasts dwelling upon the imminent horrors of war in Europe and they seemed to be in a mood to accept anything as possible. With one accord they telephoned to the nearest police station for confirmation, except for a few who didn't bother with the police, but took immediate steps for their own safety or those of their neighbors.

In New Jersey a man burst into a motion-picture theatre to warn the spectators, who were convinced by the panic in his tones and arose and fled. Others, in the vicinity of the Oranges, gathered their families into automobiles, threw in a few blankets and raced for the fastnesses of the Orange Mountains. One apartment house was deserted by its panic-stricken occupants.

The police of scores of communities and the newspapers too were swamped with telephone calls. At New York Police Headquarters it was estimated that more than 2000 calls came in within fifteen minutes.

Newark police headquarters had about the same number. The Maplewood police headquarters in New Jersey which has four switchboards, had 1500 calls.

The police for miles around were not only overwhelmed with telephone calls, but thoroughly bewildered. Learning that the broadcast had come from WABC, they called the Columbia Broadcasting System, but the office of that corporation was itself inundated with calls and it was fifteen minutes before the police got a wire in.

In the mean time, they had queried newspaper reporters, who had called their offices, and reference to the radio programs printed yesterday morning seemed to indicate that New Jersey probably had been bombed and destroyed only by the Wells-Welles combination. The following message was sent from headquarters to all stations and radio cars at 9:15 p. m.:

"Station WABC informs us that the broadcast just completed was a dramatization of a play. No cause for alarm."

State Police headquarters in Trenton, N. J., sent out a teletype message to the same effect, and the refugees were turned back on their way to the hills.

In New York several police stations were besieged by women about whom terrified children clustered. They wanted to know what was going on and where they should go for safety.

A motorist who was parked near the Lodi Theatre, a small motion picture house on Washington street, Orange, N. J., was lazily searching for a radio program when he was electrified by the announcement that the Columbia station was turning its facilities over to the commander of the National Guard. The voice of the "officer" followed. The motorist listened breathlessly for a moment, casting an incredulous eye

THE STATE GRANGE

Program For Annual Meeting In Augusta Makes Its Appearance

The programs for the session of the Maine State Grange at Augusta, Dec. 6, 7 and 8 at the city hall have been issued.

The business session commences Tuesday morning at 9:30; the reports of officers and committees will be made at that session including the address of the master, F. A. Richardson of Strong. In the afternoon will be the lecturer's hour in charge of Hartley M. Stewart of Houlton and the memorial service in charge of the chaplain, Rev. Royal Brown of Bangor. The Juvenile hour will be in charge of the superintendent, Mrs. Christine Richardson.

Tuesday night the exemplification of the first degree will be given by Vassalboro Grange. The second degree by Coblescott Grange of West Gardiner.

On Wednesday beside the regular business two members of the executive committee will be elected. In the afternoon will be the 65th anniversary program. The fifth degree will be conferred by Cumberland Pomona Grange. In the evening will be one of the finest events of the session the conferring of the Sixth degree.

Thursday's time will be consumed by the usual reports and business, as will addresses that will be given by various people.

A notice in the printed program reads: "All resolutions fixing the policy of the State Grange should be presented not later than Tuesday evening. None will be accepted after that time unless by unanimous consent."

THE LATE HURRICANE

Graphic Story Of It To Be Told Here By Alton H. Blackington

Keen and widespread interest is being displayed in the forthcoming lecture by Alton H. Blackington which will be given in Community Hall next Tuesday night under the auspices of the Community Guild.

The story of the recent New England hurricanes will be told. Here is what one of the Massachusetts papers said about Alton after he had spoken before the Waltham Woman's Club.

"In 500 colored pictures, representing a distance of 3,000 miles, visiting and re-visiting places at Buzzard's Bay, Long Island Sound on Cape Cod and in New England, the speaker gave a vivid story of the most harrowing disaster of modern history. Showing beaches, woods and country residences preceding the storm then the contrasting views with a story of pathos and tragedy that cost hundreds of lives and the ruin of age old trees that cannot be replaced in a life time.

"The difficulty of obtaining pictures played an important feature in the story. Some of the places were New London, Conn., Nashua, N. H., and Cape Cod. Mr. Blackington crossed Long Island Sound at 11 a. m. and the storm struck that section at 2 p. m. The tidal wave and the ensuing darkness made it impossible to take pictures for a period of several hours.

"Fire was fought in New London under the greatest difficulty. The gale turned the water from the fire hose into spray at a distance of 15 feet when the ordinary distance would be 100 feet. The menage from fire was noted.

"The pictures showed boats that were torn from their moorings and landed high and dry on railroad tracks; houses that were sent floating far out into the water; beaches that had been destroyed; sand piled high far inland; people seeking their dead in the ruins of once beautiful homes; factories where death came suddenly with the tidal wave, one whose basement floor held 50 women's bodies. There was an occasional bit of humor in some unusual circumstance, but they were few as the seriousness of the pictured story was too great."

meantime on the peaceful Sabbath evening street scene before him.

Then he leaped from his car and rushed into the Lodi Theatre.

"The state is being invaded," he yelled. "This place is going to be blown up."

His words were received without the slightest incredulity. Everybody in the house leaped to his feet and made for the doors. Within two minutes the place was vacated.

Almost at once the word of impending catastrophe spread through the community and excited throngs headed for the police station. Before the crowd there became dense, however, the message from State Police Headquarters had arrived and the reassuring message was sent out that the invasion was purely imaginary.

The East Orange police already were suffering from the plague of telephone calls when two New York motorists came bursting in. They were on their way home, they said, heading for the Pulaski Skyway, when they heard by radio broadcast that the Skyway had been blown up.

Old Enemies Meet

Rockland High and Morse High All Dolled Up For Tomorrow's Game

Event—Annual football game between Rockland High and Morse High of Bath.

Place—Community Park, Rockland.

Time—Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Result—

Betcher a pint of goobers that "Beany" Stover, the alert and versatile sports editor of the Bath Times will be right on deck, and that maybe he has a report of the game already in type, featuring Morse High as the victor.

But hold your horses, "Beany"; you cannot figure that way on Rockland High this season. Don Mattheson's boys have been going places this season, and they're not going to draw the line at the tinged waters which Bath folks call the Kennebec River. No sir!

Via the grapevine route O' Fox Mattheson hears that Morse High uses deceptive plays that might almost be termed guard larceny, that it has a strong kicker in Hamblett; that it has a heavy line; that it has beaten Hallowell, but was vanquished by Gardiner.

And is Rockland scared? Nary a shiver.

Coach Mattheson has been whispering new plays into eager ears, and there promises to be lots of overhead stuff in this contest, with Chisholm on the receiving end of long passes. Defensive line work has also been receiving much attention. All of the local boys are in good condition.

Yes, sir, it's going to be one fine game.

Here are the probable lineups:

Morse High: le. Sullivan; lt. Harvey; lg. Rich; c. Alkazin; rg. Wyman; rt. Osborne; re. Gallagher; qb. Desmond; lb. Holbrook; rlb. Clark; fb. Hamblett.

Rockland High: ra. Gus Huntley; rt. Horeysek; rg. Mazzeo; c. Johnson; lg. McConchie; lt. Perry; le. Chisholm; qb. Allen; rqb. Duffy; ge. Huntley; lb. Billings; fo. Glover.

It pays to advertise in our Classified column.

IN SUPERIOR COURT

The Grand Jury Found 15 Indictments, One Charging Manslaughter

The traverse jurors put in appearance this morning ready for such cases as might come to their attention. There seemed a prospect of only a few trials, with the likelihood that court will adjourn about Tuesday. But that's all guess work, to be sure.

A new grand jury was impaneled Tuesday morning as follows: Maynard F. Sukeforth of Washington (foreman); Otis Alden, Camden; Edgar H. Bradstreet, Vinalhaven; Eugene H. Brown, Friendship; Ralph Choate, Rockland; Charles J. Copeland, Warren; Albert C. Crowley, Owl's Head; Mrs. Bessie Hardy, Hope (clerk); Mrs. Grace Hobbs, Camden; Guy Johnson, Rockland; Albert H. Jones, Union; Frank Salisbury, Rockport; Mrs. Rosetta Sidelinger, Washington; Charles Stackpole, South Thomaston; William J. Harrison of Thomaston; Deway L. Maloney, Cushing; Clarence J. Stone, North Haven; Fred Watts, St. George were excused from further service.

The jury completed its duties in a single day, drawing from Justice Emery the remark that it "appeared to be very expeditious work." He urged the jurors to be more prompt in their attendance next term and there was a twinkle in his eyes which served to offset the severe remarks to which he had given utterance Tuesday morning when he learned that there was not a "quorum" present.

These indictments were reported:

Miss Ruth Priest, Rockport, three charges—manslaughter, reckless driving and speed not reasonable and proper. Miss Priest was indicted in connection with the accident which resulted in the death of Ronald Brown, aged 5 of Rockport.

Frank Brown, Solomon Voisms, Joseph Ashworth and Fred Deschaine, escape from State Prison.

John A. Robbins and Charles Frazier of Rockland, breaking, entering and larceny.

Fred Richardson and Charles Reynolds, Rockland, breaking, entering and larceny in the night time.

Six applicants were admitted to citizenship yesterday morning by Judge Emery. The list follows: William Pirtinen of Tenant's Harbor, native of Finland; Ethel Corinne Auld of Tenant's Harbor, native of Vinalhaven; Fred Olof Lindquist of Rockland, native of Sweden; Lena Mary Cotureau Dow of Rockland, native of Nova Scotia; Eino Emil Leino of Warren, native of Finland; Mildred Ellen Reed of Rockland, native of Canada.

Francis J. H. Dever of the Immigration and Naturalization office in Portland conducted the examinations. Mrs. Hattie Davies represented Lady Knox Chapter, D.A.R., and presented flags to the new citizens. Rockland High School was well represented by the eighty-five members of the senior class.

The criminal docket was called Wednesday afternoon: The cases of the State vs. Everett Maddocks for non-support of minor children; and the State vs. Colby Meser for operating a motor vehicle while under influence of intoxicating liquor were not pressed because of insufficient evidence.

Fred Deschaine and Solomon Voisms, two inmates of the State Prison who were absent without leave at the time of the Mills murder and who have been questioned about the same, were arraigned on a charge of escape from prison. Because Warden Welch had recommended leniency on the grounds that these respondents had voluntarily returned to the prison, Judge Emery filed the cases on a special docket. He, however, warned these men to stay out of trouble or these indictments would be brought forward and sentence be entered against them.

Inez Wilbur of Camden, embezzlement, three counts, $500 each.

Myrtle Armstrong of Thomaston, adultery.

Joseph Ashworth, who took French leave from the prison in company with Fred Brown, and who was picked up at Richmond, Va., was arraigned on a charge of escape from prison. Ashworth stated that he still has twenty-two months to serve on his present sentence. As in the cases of Deschaine and Voisms, Judge Emery told Ashworth that this case will be filed on a special docket, pending his good behavior at the institution and also after he returns to public life.

John A. Robbins and Charles Frazier pleaded guilty to the charge of breaking, entering and larceny in the night time. Sentence has not yet been passed in this case.

An indictment was found against John Gray of Rockport on the charge of arson. The indictment set forth that the respondent set fire to his dwelling house in order to obtain the benefit of an insurance policy amounting to $1000. Bail was fixed at $2000. Oscar H. Emery represented the respondent.

H. Paul Landers of Lewiston was arraigned on a charge of cheating by false pretenses, to which he pleaded not guilty. Charles F. Dwalin represents the respondent.

Sentence of the lower court was affirmed after default in the case of Merrill Orff, driving without a license, and in the case of John A. Williams of Warren on a charge of intoxication. Williams was fined $10 and costs $8.70 in the lower court.

Inez Wilbur pleaded not guilty to three counts charging embezzlement and James Connellan was appointed to represent the respondent.

Myrtle Armstrong pleaded not guilty to an adultery indictment.

Harry E. Wilbur was appointed counsel.

Roy Sanborn Taylor retracted his plea of "not guilty" on a drunken driving charge and was sentenced to 30 days.

Clarence B. Tolman of Warren was appointed foreman of the traverse jury.

If a Fall Suit is the furthest thing from your mind...

We'd like to talk with the man who is definitely not interested in new clothes. You know... the chap who says to his family, "It's all right for you and the girls but I'm not going to buy a new stitch this winter."

We'd like to show this man some Suits and Topcoats that will take him off the defense and put him on the fence... patterns that will change his "I won't" into "I wonder"... at prices that will make him glad he's not too stubborn to change his mind.

Take your own case, for example... that's the one we'd like to make an example of.

Cadillac Showings
All Models Will Be Displayed At The New York Exhibit Cadillac-LaSalle will be represented by complete lines of 1939 models at all major automobile shows. General Manager Nicholas Dreystadt announced this week.
"Due to the wide variety of Cadillac and LaSalle types, it has in some previous years been impossible to present all our cars at the exhibitions," Mr. Dreystadt said.
"This year, however, our dealers will have available any of the 38 new series and body types they may wish to exhibit."
Under arrangements worked out by the Automobile Manufacturers Association, Cadillac will have direct sponsorship only of the New York displays. Others of the 39 auto shows to be held within the next two months will be handled entirely by Cadillac-LaSalle dealers.
Three special showings are listed for New York. At the national show in Grand Central Palace, a crystal green LaSalle convertible sedan with a striking mirror-like finish will feature a comprehensive array of models. The upholstery will be white leather.
Two Sixty Specials will headline Cadillac's contribution to the beauties of the General Motors salon at the Waldorf-Astoria. One will offer a two-tone paint scheme that is expected to be a star automotive attraction this fall. The other, in addition to the new paint style, will feature the sunshine turret top roof. The third special exhibit in the lobby of the Waldorf spotlights a Cadillac Sixteen convertible sedan with red metallic body and upholstery of cream leather and maroon broadcloth.
"On the whole, the Cadillac and LaSalle show cars will be lighter and more colorful than ever before," Mr. Dreystadt added. "This is in keeping with the new business spirit that finds the future of the industry brighter than for several months."

Lincoln Pomona Grange

All members of Maple Grange seemed to be otherwise engaged, the writer W. R. Walter was the sole attendant from that subdivision to make one of the over 100 members of Lincoln Pomona to meet with Hutton Hill Grange last Saturday. It was his first visit with the patrons of the host Grange and vicinity and was much impressed with the building which in his judgment is the most commodious Grange hall in Lincoln County. He also learned that the funds in the treasury exceeded those of any subordinate in the county. The Grange home is situated but a few miles from Wiscasset with easy access over a black road from that village.

The meeting was opened with Worthy Master Fred B. Allen in the chair. The Pomona degree was conferred upon a large class of candidates. The patrons then reassembled to enjoy the interesting program which the lecturer, Mrs. Gladys F. Burk, had prepared: Song "America"; address of welcome, Mrs. Quinam; response Mrs. Beryl Hunt; reading, Barbara Leadbeater; solo, Olive Daw; question, "How can the farmers in my community farm to better advantage?" eight members.

Herbert A. Clark, spoke on "Community Indolence." Frank Carlton last Representative to the Legislature, scored the neglect of leaving grass uncut, the result being empty barns. Next was a reading by Margaret Boynton and then the chief speaker, Vincent K. Canham, Agricultural Editor of the Lewiston Sun, kept the audience interested for an hour or more.

S. H. Creighton

S. H. Creighton a life-long resident of this place died Oct. 25 after a long illness the latter part of which had confined him to his room. Born June 11, 1857 in the house which had always been his home and from which he was absent at very rare intervals, he managed his farm and was actively interested in its operation until compelled by failing health to leave his farm to the State.

A great reader, he was always well informed in regard to affairs of the country and continued his interest to the last. During his illness he received the constant care and attention of his housekeeper Mrs. Leila Lermond who had made her home in the family for several years.

Although unable to attend Grange meetings in recent years he retained his membership in Good Will Grange of which he was a charter member and in which he served several years as treasurer. He had previously been a member of Thomaston Grange.

He is survived by a brother, Capt. J. E. Creighton of Thomaston. Services were held at the home conducted by Rev. Hubert Leach. Burial in the church cemetery in Warren.

STRAND THEATRE FRIDAY-SATURDAY
"STRAIGHT, PLACE AND SHOW"

The artist who drew this picture of the Ritz Brothers in Damon Runyon's "Straight, Place and Show," the 20th Century-Fox comedy, wanted to call it "Still Life." He says if there's still life left in him he's going to see the picture again and die laughing. The first time he laughed himself hoarse (lower left.)—adv.

ISLE AU HAUT
Samuel E. Rich

Samuel Edwin Rich died Oct. 16 in Rockland, after an illness of several months. Although it was generally known that he was seriously ill, his death came as a shock to his relatives and friends.

Mr. Rich was born at Rich's Cove in this town Dec. 6, 1879, oldest son of the late Edwin and Alfaretta (Gross) Rich and passed the greater part of his life here. In his earlier years he spent several summers yachting, and held a first mate's license for ocean going ships. He had made several foreign voyages, finally returning to his home and taking up his work at lobster fishing and running a small grocery store.

Mr. Rich had held many positions of trust in town affairs and at the time of his illness was town treasurer. He was a member of the Board of Trustees and a deacon of the Union Congregational Church with which he united at an early age, and was a faithful member and regular attendant as long as his health permitted.

April 16, 1922 he was married to Clyde E. Gerrish, of Vinal Haven who survives him. He leaves also six brothers, William, Albert, Llewellyn, Walter of Isle au Haut, John of Concord, N. H., and Floyd of Jackson, Mich.; three sisters, Mrs. Clara Barter, Elizabeth and Ava Rich; besides several nieces and nephews. He was a kind husband and brother and outside the family circle his quiet unassuming manner and pleasant smile will be missed by his neighbors and friends.

Services were held at the Russell Funeral Home in Rockland with Rev. J. Charles MacDonald of the First Baptist Church officiating, and attended by a large group of friends. Services were held here at the home of Ava and Walter Rich, Rev. Nell Bousfield of the Seacoast Missionary Society officiating. The house was filled with relatives and friends gathered to pay a tribute of respect to a firm friend, a kind neighbor and a respected citizen, and the abundance of beautiful flowers bore silent testimony of the love and esteem in which Mr. Rich was held. The bearers were George Coombs, Dennis Eaton, Stanley Dodge, William Robinson, Willis Kossuth and James Jenkins. There were committal services at the grave and interment was in the family cemetery at Rich's Cove. [Contributed]

Rockland Man Will Head Blueberry Growers the Coming Year

Nils Loftman of this city was elected president of the State of Maine Blueberry Growers' Association, Inc. at the annual meeting this week.

The business meeting was presided over by Ivan Scott of Waldoboro retiring president.

Ray Atherton, extension economist of the University of Maine commended the association on its success and showed a movie film of the locker refrigerator system, which is gaining in popularity in the West. This system, which permits the farmer to refrigerate food products, including fruit, meat, eggs, etc., for a year in a refrigerator, was explained by A. A. Grieger of York, Penn.

The association voted to manufacture this coming season the 24-basket crate instead of the customary 32-basket crate, it made last year. It is planned to manufacture at the warehouse the usual 15,000 which will be sold members of the association and showed a movie film of the locker refrigerator system, which is gaining in popularity in the West. SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Buxton and Mrs. Wayne Buxton of Stockton Springs were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Marcus, Summer street.

Announcement has been made of the marriage Sept. 4 in Salem, N. H. of Charles N. Perry formerly of this place to Ruth M. Keogh of Lewiston, Maine. The ceremony was performed by Rev. William Lee of the Congregational Church.

Mrs. Jennie T. Aylward of 5 North street is today celebrating her 90th birthday. She knits and reads during her spare moments and is unusually keen mentally. Mrs. Aylward is the mother of nine living children.

Mrs. Thomas C. Stone entertained Tuesday night in honor of Mr. R. C. Jewell, who leaves the middle of November, to make her home in Yarmouth. Three tables of contract were in play, honors going to Mrs. Jerome C. Burrows, Mrs. Wilbur R. Senior, Mrs. John Black and Mrs. Betty Ferguson. Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served, the honor guest being presented with a farewell gift by the group. Others included were Mrs. Donald C. Leach, Mrs. Rupert L. Stratton, Mrs. Harold S. Leach, Mrs. Claude U. Bishop Jr., Mrs. John H. McLean and Mrs. Cleveland Sierper Jr.

Lady Knox Chapter D.A.R. will meet Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Leforest A. Thurston, 468 Old County road. Miss Elizabeth Reed of Boothbay Harbor and Mrs. K. C. Leach will be guest speakers, taking for her subject "Romance of Colonial Women." The officers of Pemquid Chapter, Lincoln County will be guests, as well as the Senior and Junior High School girls who have been awarded Good Citizen medals and pins. Mrs. Adelaide Butman, Mrs. Mary Cooper, Mrs. Iva Bronk, Miss Jeannette Stahl and Mrs. Eva Wisner will be assistant hostesses.

Twenty-nine young people were present at the Christian Endeavor Social Monday night in the vestry of the First Baptist Church. Cat and dog, one of several games played was especially interesting. Miss Ellen J. Cochran went Tuesday to Portland to visit Dr. and Mrs. Dexter Clough for a week.

Capt. and Mrs. Harry Lane of Rockport, were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Coombs.

Miss Alice Louise Munson, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Mary Durgin, has returned to her home in St. Stephen, N. B.

Miss Bertha Coombs entertained members of the B.B.D.I. Club and invited guests Friday night at a Halloween costume party and scavenger hunt. The guests returned to the Coombs' home on Limerock street, where pumpkins, black cats, and corn stalks decorated the rooms and had a merry time at games. Refreshments included sandwiches, a prettily decorated cake done by Mrs. Coombs, cookies, candies, hot chocolate and pop corn. Those present were: Marjorie Leeman, Arlene Paine, Dorothy Smith, Barbara Wood and Louise Smith.

SLEEPY TIME (For The Counter-Gaite) After the little one has his fill of supper and is very still, Mother sings a song, very still. Mother sings a song, very still. Mother sings a song, very still. About little sleep going over the hill.

They run so fast and jump in play With their black and grey and white. It's time for them to hurry away. Up they go with heads down.

For they must be home each night. Now they climb a lonely hill And over they go on top of night. Then another hill they must climb Before they reach home for the night.

Into the barn yard, how they run! With the moon and the stars shining brightly. When a soft white cloud comes drifting. The twinkling stars all laugh too soon. For another cloud they must climb. Covers the stars and the sheep and the moon.

With the dark and eyes grow weary. How the moon and stars shine. As mother says, "Sleep tight, my dearie!" K. S. P.

THRILLS HER AUDIENCE

Edna St. Vincent Millay Proves Herself An Actress As Well As Poet

"If anybody has any power in this troubled world in which we are living, it should be the poets and artists. But that power must be used in arousing people to a greater sensitiveness, and awareness, and sense of decency, and never for propaganda. The wrong way to convince people of anything is to try to beat it into their heads. But if they understand enough and care enough, they will perhaps think less about war and the other untidy ways in which the world is being run."

The greatest woman poet of her time, and one of the supreme poets of all time, sat, weary but graciously lovely, at a school desk in a small room behind the stage at the West Hartford High School. Into the room, Edna St. Vincent Millay had escaped at length from the hundreds who poured onto the stage at the close of her program of readings from her own poems under the auspices of the Poetry Club of Hartford.

At close range, Miss Millay is smaller than she looked on the stage, in the Renaissance robe of red velvet, which fell in heavy folds about her slim figure and swept the floor at her feet. Her tawny hair made a frame for her sensitive face and behind her eyes one could glimpse the flame that is her mind.

Her vibrant voice was tired. For an hour she had used it to sweep the heartstrings of her audience. But she was happy, not only as a poet is happy who finds anew that her words are magic, but as an actress who has moved her listeners to laughter and tears.

"Of course it is exhausting to read my poetry," she said. "But it is great fun. I have always had a yearning to go on the stage. I even wanted to give up everything else. And I did it for awhile. And this sort of thing gives me a chance to act a little."

There were many in the audience who must have felt, as perhaps they had not felt it before when they heard Miss Millay read, that here was an artist who might have been a great actress, if she had not elected rather to be a poet.

She read with a greater poise and a deeper power. The nuances of her voice were more subtle. With no insistence on emotion, she ran the gamut from the naivete of a child to the bitterness of adult grief. With a turn of the head and a changed inflection, she became her character, completely and convincingly. And she read her lyric poems with unforgettable charm.

But at the close of her program she talked of the philosophy which lies behind that poetry, and the hard work that molds it into shape to fit her dream.

"What do I think is the part of the poet in the world today? Surely he has come down from his ivory tower. Of course he must concern himself with the vital questions of our time. But it is not his part to answer those questions, but just to present them so that perhaps some wiser ones may solve them."

"How do you resolve the problems you present in 'Conversation at Midnight'—those of individualism against Communism?"—she was asked.

"I don't know the answers. If they are solved, it will be by a wiser person than I. I just present them from different points of view. The poet can only arouse his listeners to a greater sensitivity."

"And how do I work? I work very hard. Sometimes from 4 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night, without stopping to eat. I do that very often. And where?" She laughed. "Of course I fix up the loveliest places in which to work, like a shack in the woods, far away from everyone, or a beautiful library in my own house. And then I get the urge to write when the room is full of people. So I swing my feet over the arm of the chair, and scribble on the back of an envelope. I do a great deal of my writing on trains or hotels, or at odd moments anywhere."

"For my own stimulation I like best to read Latin poetry—Virgil and Propertius and Catullus. I take them with me to hotels. I have Propertius and Catullus with me tonight. Oh, yes, I read them in the original, though I am not a fluent reader. And I suppose, when I stop to think of it, that my style has been influenced by Latin poetry. I also read French as easily as English, and Italian and Spanish and Dutch."

Those who have read or heard her poetry recognize her wide and deep knowledge and her flair for the perfect word.

We asked her the meaning of a word which appeared in a recently published poem. Her eyes flashed.

"Renignant? Of course that was a typographical error, and I was furious about it. Naturally it should be 'benignant.' There's no such word as 'renignant,' though it sounds lovely, and perhaps there ought to be."

Earlier in the evening she had read a program which suggested the scope of her work. Opening with "Winter Night," she went on to several poems from "Wine From These Grapes," including "The Fledgling," and the poignant "Childhood is the Kingdom Where Nobody Dies," sonnets 17 and 38 from "Fatal Interview," "The Philosopher" and one other from "Flies and Thistles," excerpts from "Conversations at Midnight," several delightful poems in which children speak; "Fountain, I Shall Not Drink of Thy Water," a number of recently published sonnets; two delightful bits of satire, "To a Calvinist in Ball," and "Huntsman, What Quarry?" and a sonnet especially for Hartford.

"I have been here several times," she told her audience. "And when I read of the terrible trouble you had been through, I was worried about Hartford. So I thought, 'I will read them this poem.' And she read the sonnet from the sequence, "Epitaph for the Race of Man," which begins:

The broken dike, the levee washed away,
The good fields flooded and the cattle drowned, Estranged and treacherous all the And no'ing left but floating disarray Of tree and home uprooted . . .

Miss Millay especially charmed her audience with many easy and humorous asides as she arranged her books. "I know these all by heart. I don't know why I drag all these books about." . . . "Now I shall have to do a little moving." . . . and when shouts from the gymnasium obtruded, "Someone seems to be having a very good time. Do you think we should ask them in?"

And later in the evening her eyes lit up with the collector's joy when Miss Martha L. Spencer, Poetry Editor of The Times, gave her a small white and purple cowry shell for her collection.

"Oh, it's lovely!" cried the poet. "I shall cherish it. I never saw one like it. I love them because they're so fascinating. And I don't know why they're fascinating either!" —Marian Murray in the Hartford (Conn.) Times.

Esther Lee Bride
FOOD AUTHOR—LECTURER—TEACHER

Esther Lee Bride holds a Home Economics degree, teaches at two universities, broadcasts, and writes for magazines. At one time almost totally blind, her sense of taste is unusually acute. Yet when Miss Bride tasted Allsweet along with several higher-priced spreads, she was baffled! Couldn't even guess which one was Allsweet!

I'm Confessing!

The new ALLSWEET margarine amazed me. I couldn't tell it apart from spreads costing more!

ALLSWEET

AMERICA'S "GUEST-QUALITY" MARGARINE

● When Esther Bride, with 16 years' experience in foods, is unable to tell Allsweet Margarine from higher-priced spreads—that's news! News—and evidence that you can serve this sensational new thrift spread to your most critical guests without a moment's hesitation. Use it on hot vegetables. And in all your cooking, too.

"I'm thrilled," declared Miss Bride, "that a margarine as fine as thrifty Allsweet is possible today."

You'll be thrilled, too. Just wait until you see the way the family goes for it. And what a jolt it does give to old man High Cost of Living! Allsweet is pure and wholesome through and through. (It would have to be to baffle so many food experts, as it has done!) Made of fine American vegetable oils, scientifically mixed in fresh, pasteurized skimmed milk. Approved by Good Housekeeping. Accepted by the American Medical Association, Council on Foods. Order money-saving Allsweet at your food dealer's.

ANN WINS OUT OVER A BUDGET THAT WON'T BUDGE!

SKIMP AND SCRIMP AND SAVE! AND STILL CAN'T SEEM TO MAKE THE HOUSE MONEY GO FAR ENOUGH.

LISTEN, ANN. WHY NOT SWITCH TO ALLSWEET, THE WONDERFUL NEW MARGARINE? IT WILL SAVE A HEAP!

BUT BILL HATES MARGARINE, VI!

NONSENSE! HE'LL NEVER KNOW ALLSWEET! IT'S A MARGARINE. IT HAS POOLED TASTE EXPERTS BY THE SCORE!

M-M-M, HOT CAKES WITH SLATHERS OF AFINE SPREAD. THERE'S MY DISH! HOPE IT DOESN'T RUIN THE BUDGET.

SILLY, GO RIGHT AHEAD. THAT SPREAD IS THRIFTY ALLSWEET MARGARINE! YOU'VE BEEN EATING IT FOR DAYS AND NEVER KNEW THE DIFFERENCE.

To Build Hospital

Institution In Damariscotta To Be Erected In Memory of Samuel A. Miles

Mrs. Isabella R. Miles, widow of Samuel A. Miles, has bought Gamag's Point on the Bristol road, Damariscotta and will erect in the spring a fireproof building to house the Memorial Hospital.

The location is about a quarter of a mile off the main road, on a gentle elevation, near the salt water and is ideal for the purpose. The present location of the hospital is a three-story wooden building near the center of the business part of the village, close to the Atlantic Highway, with all the disadvantages of noise, smoke, heat and fire hazard. The new building will accommodate 30 beds and the cost will be about $50,000.

The gift is in memory of Mrs. Miles' husband, Mr. Miles, who came to this country from Clifton, England, at the age of 14 in the steerage. He became a very wealthy man, and shared his wealth with the needy.

Among his benefactions was the building of a fresh air camp at his summer residence "Clifton," at South Bristol. There he had a complete outfit for the accommodation of 200 children. He had them come in relays of 200 for two weeks during the summer months. Officers of the Salvation Army attended to the details. Mr. Miles once remarked "The Salvation Army does all the work. All I have to do is pay the bills." This camp cost about $50,000.

Mr. Miles died while on a visit to England several years ago and his ashes were brought to Damariscotta for burial.

For some years after Mr. Miles' death, Mrs. Miles kept up the custom of having hundreds of underprivileged children brought to the camp.

Mr. Miles while in Maine at one time heard the name of Bristol. As he was born in Bristol, England, he was curious to see the place. He was attracted to it and bought a large tract of unimproved land near Christmas Cove. He built on it a commodious home and made many improvements in the way of roads and buildings, including Miles' Tower, a 10-story building which overlooks many miles of sea and land. He called the place "Clifton" in memory of his boyhood home. For many years he held field days for the school children of Lincoln County. Many events were run off and Mr. Miles gave valuable prizes to the winners.

He had plans for a splendid monumental arch to span the road where South Bristol and Bristol meet. One side would be in Bristol, the other in South Bristol. This was to be a most magnificent monument to the boys from Bristol and South Bristol who served in the World War.

Castine Normal

The football game played with Bangor Maine School of Commerce at Bangor, Thursday during the meeting of the Maine Teachers' Association, resulted in a score of 38-7 in favor of E.S.N.S. Principal Husson of Bangor M.S.C. co-operated with Coach Hatfield of E.S.N.S. in making this a demonstration or exhibition game toward developing further interest and understanding of six-man football.

A game party was held in the gymnasium Friday night. The students took part in originating and directing games of their choice. The last part of the evening was spent in general dancing.

Wednesday evening, Oct. 26, a group of students from the Normal School attended a Halloween party given at the model rural school in Penobscot. Those present included Margaret Rogers, 40 and Margaret McMillan, 40, both of Rockland. Miss Rogers trained in this school during September and Miss McMillan has entered upon her second week of training.

There was an unusually large attendance at the annual meeting of the General Alumni Association held at Penobscot Exchange, Bangor, Oct. 27. A considerable number applied too late to secure tickets. Mrs. Addie R. Rogers, E.S.N.S., 16 presided. Two of the nine members of the executive committee of the association are Margaret Simmons '32 of Friendship, and Relief Nichols, '26, who formerly came from Rockland. Miss Annie Rhodes, who teaches at Rockland Highlands attended the banquet.

Orrett F. Robinson of Warren, teacher of science and history, spoke in chapel Tuesday morning outlining his interpretation of the speech delivered by Dr. Howard J. Wise-haupt on "Personality Development."

Principal William D. Hall spoke on the Wise Use of Leisure Time before the department of Teacher Training at the recent MTA meeting at Bangor.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

BETTER LIGHT means

- Better work
- Less fatigue and a
- Shorter working day!

Because the business man or woman spends more hours in the office than in any other activity, better office light is vitally important. Good light means a minimum of eye-strain, a saving of nervous fatigue. It means more work done—accomplished with greater ease. Insufficient or glaring light robs the strongest man of vitality in time, tearing down the strength of his muscles. And when business people, artificially fagged out after a day of eye-strain at the office, reach home, only to encounter the same inadequate lighting conditions, the mischief done is doubled. How can one tell whether the lighting is adequate and properly distributed? One can't—judging by the eyes alone. For eyes seek to adjust themselves to conditions. The only sure way is to have our lighting engineer test the light.

LOW ELECTRIC RATES MAKE ONLY POOR LIGHTING EXPENSIVE

It costs little, with the present lighting rates—lowest in history—to have ample light. It costs nothing to have one of our lighting experts test with a Light Meter the amount you are actually getting. Telephone today for this test.
